

Male and Female Bees

Find the family tree for a male bee.

Important information about bees:

- Male bees have only one parent – a female. (They develop from unfertilized eggs)
- Female bees have two parents – a male and a female.

Draw the family tree back about 9 generations. Do this on chart paper so you have enough room to work. When you finish, count the number of male bees, female bees, and total bees for each generation and organize the information to present to the class.
